

Dr. Wiebke J. Boeing

Assistant Professor, Department of Fishery and Wildlife Sciences,
New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88003

Office: 505-646-1707

Fax: 505-646-1281

Email: wboeing@nmsu.edu

Education

1993 B.S. Biology, Universität Potsdam, Germany
1996 M.S. Hydrobiology, Technische Universität Dresden, Germany
2002 Ph.D. Aquatic Ecology, Louisiana State University

Professional Experience

1997-2002 Teaching Assistant, Louisiana State University
2002-2004 Post-doctoral Researcher, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration/University of Washington (Joint Institute for the Study of Atmosphere and Ocean), Seattle
2004-present Assistant Professor, Department of Fishery and Wildlife Sciences, NMSU

Primary Research Interests

Management and conservation of aquatic organisms; Effects of climate change and anthropogenic activities on the aquatic community; Predator-prey interactions; Influence of various environmental parameters on biodiversity and individual species

I have experience in both freshwater and marine systems, and have worked on every trophic level of the aquatic food web

Professional Activities and Honors (last 6 years)

Current Reviewer: Limnology and Oceanography, African Journal of Marine Sciences,
American Midland Naturalist, Hydrobiologia
Member: American Fisheries Society, Ecological Society of America, American Society of Limnology and Oceanography, Sigma Xi
2006 Distinguished Member of the NMSU Teaching Academy
2005 Judge for New Mexico State Science Fair
2004 Ocean Career Day (outreach for NOAA)
2003 Volunteer with the Nature Conservancy